Future Leaders - Networking Is A Critically Important Skill

Steven Wasserman
Contributor

Forbes

Networking is a skill that few students learn while in college. This is unfortunate because networking is a critically important skill that future leaders will need to master. Ironically, the success of career services departments including Bentley University's Career Services Department, delays the need for future leaders to learn to network.

Networking is often associated with job searches. This is not surprising given that certain studies have shown that most jobs come from networking. For example, according to LinkedIn, 85% of jobs come from networking. Although networking is a tool that will assist future leaders with their job searches, networking provides more benefits than solely obtaining job leads. Networking is an effective learning tool, which provides a way to gather information, obtain advice and support, share information, and generate ideas.

USDA-NRCS in Georgia Announces Sign-Up for Conservation Easements Program

ATHENS, GA, Sept. 20, 2024 — State Conservationist Terrance O. Rudolph, for the USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Georgia, today announced a sign-up for the Agricultural Conservation Easement Program (ACEP) for fiscal year 2025. To be considered for the upcoming fiscal year’s funding pool, applications must be submitted by October 25, 2024.

The ACEP, created through the 2014 Farm Bill and reauthorized in the 2018 Farm Bill, is a program that has two components, known as Agricultural Land Easements (ALE) and Wetlands Reserve Easements (WRE).

“ACEP is an effective tool for landowners and eligible entities to conserve, restore and protect our nation’s wetlands, productive agricultural lands and grasslands,” said Rudolph. “NRCS is honored to be trusted by our customers to help them make long term conservation goals a reality while protecting our nation’s stewardship goals at the same time.”

A Passion for Cars and Partnership with the UGA SBDC Result in Thriving Business

After 20 years in the finance world, Steve Kanner was ready for a change. Thanks to some guidance from the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (SBDC), Kanner accelerated his love for cars into a new career.

In 2015, Kanner took a leap of faith. He left his finance career so he and a childhood friend could open Commando Racing—a business dedicated to creating car racing gear. After a year of focusing on racing apparel, Kanner saw an opportunity to shift the business to focus on custom car builds and classic car restoration. Kanner bought out his business partner in 2019, then the following year changed the name of the business to Commando Customs & Classics and leased the 11,000-square-foot facility on Dean Forest Road in Savannah where the business is located today. He knew he wanted to purchase the building, but he wasn't sure of the steps to get there.

“As a kid, I was always tinkering around with cars. And through high school and after, I enjoyed building cars with friends. It’s always been a passion,” said Kanner.

SPECTACULAR STAYS

Treat yourself to a fall weekend getaway—made even sweeter with a stay at one of these standout properties

BY LIA PICARD

RETRO RECREATION

With splashy murals adorning the exterior, you can't miss the Groovy Nomad. Once a 1950s roadside motel, the recently renovated property in Trenton boasts 10 Insta-worthy rooms decorated to the hilt with floral wallpapers, jewel-toned furnishings, and vibrant artwork. There's even a Pac-Man room with a real-deal game system and a green-hued, Elvis-inspired "Jungle Room" for fans of the King. It's an excellent jumping-off point to attractions in the Appalachian foothills, including downtown Trenton, Chattanooga, and Cloudland Canyon State Park (bonus: each room includes an entry pass for the park).
